

WEEK 7 DEF STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR TEAMS ON LESS THAN 60% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

GREEN BAY PACKERS @ DEN

I haven't been too impressed with this defense, but they have been battling with injuries, and coming off the bye week should help them recover. The primary reason I'm suggesting them is that they get to face a turnover-prone DEN offense and have generated at least four sacks in three of the last five games. They also have forced a turnover in all but one game as well. I'm not expecting a ton of upside, but I'm confident this is a top 10-12 option with a solid floor that can get you a handful of points.

2

JACKSONVILLE JAGUARS @ NO

Over the past three games, they have been impressive, forcing multiple turnovers in three consecutive games while generating at least three sacks in two of those. Now they're facing a bottom-ten scoring offense in NO, who's been league-average in turnovers. This defense leads the league in forcing turnovers and is top-five in rushing yards allowed. I'd be surprised if they don't continue to be a top-ten defense in fantasy football. They also have an upcoming match-up against PIT, which makes them a top streaming option.

3

PITTSBURGH STEELERS @ LAR

Even though HOU destroyed them, this defense looked much better last week, generating at least four sacks and three turnovers in three of their past four games. Coming off a bye week, they will face a decent LAR offense that has looked solid. However, I believe the pass rush will get to Matthew Stafford and give the defense opportunities to force turnovers, and that upside makes them a top-12 defense with top-five upside since they are a top-ten defense in forcing turnovers.

4

LAS VEGAS RAIDERS @ CHI

This is a bit risky as they are not known to be a good defense and struggled earlier in the season. However, they have looked better over the last two weeks against below-average offenses, generating multiple sacks and forcing a turnover while holding them to less than 20 points. Now they face a turnover-prone CHI offense that will likely miss their starting QB. Because of this matchup, I'm considering them a "swing for the fence" option with top-five upside if you missed out on the above options.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM