

WAIVER ADDS WEEK 8

10/27/2020

These five players should be targeted in most 12 team leagues and are currently rostered in less than 40% of Yahoo leagues.

JAMYCAL HASTY - SF (11)

Due to a tragically injured backfield, he has gotten a shot and has impressed me with his limited touches the past couple of weeks. With Mckinnon's role uncertain, we could be looking at an excellent opportunity for him to be a decent flex option next week against SEA. With Mostert and Wilson recently on the IR, he will have an early-down role and touchdown upside.

RASHARD HIGGINS - CLE (9)

With Odell likely out for the season, he took advantage with six catches for 100 yards on six targets. While I believe this is closer to his ceiling than his floor, he made some nice catches and could be a speculative add for a WR needy team. If he gains a larger share of the targets and solidifies his role, he may end up being a WR3 for you for the rest of the season.

TIM PATRICK - DEN (5)

I understand that he didn't have an impressive performance against KC last week, but that's part of the reason he's still available. The offense doesn't look functional all the time; however, there are flashes when it works, and he's one of the reasons it does. With teams focusing on Jeudy and Fant, he's able to stretch the field and make a big play.

RICHARD RODGERS - PHI (9)

I haven't had a TE recommendation in a while, and it's not Logan Thomas (although he's still available). The reason why this team has Zach Ertz and Dallas Goedert is that the offense utilizes the TE. With Deshaun Watson injured again, the team will have limited options next week against DAL, and Rodgers could be a cheap streaming option.

ALLEN LAZARD - GB (5)

Naturally, I write about players who can provide you immediate help for your roster. But I'd be remiss if I didn't remind you that he is on the way to returning from an estimated one-month minimum timeline from core surgery. Just in case if there's an available IR spot and someone dropped him, you might want to hold him for this week to see if he starts practicing with the team in some capacity.

