

WEEK 8 WAIVERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 50% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

JALEN MCMILLAN (WR) - TB (11)

With the multi-week injuries to the top two receivers on the TB offense, this opens up many opportunities for the secondary receiving options. McMillan stepped in last week with Mike Evans hurt and finished with eight targets. He wasn't able to be fantasy-relevant, but he has the next three weeks before their bye week to be one of the top receiving threats, competing with Cade Otton and Sterling Shepard for targets. It's fair to acknowledge that this is pure speculation since, we don't know what the offense will look like.

2

KEON COLEMAN (WR) - BUF (12)

Struggling with consistency and limited opportunities earlier this season, the addition of Amari Cooper will help the overall offense and, in return, help Coleman develop some consistency as a secondary receiving threat in this offense. Last week, he flashed with a season-high in targets and his first 100+ yard performance. While this was likely his ceiling in the offense, he still competes with Khalil Shakir and Dalton Kincaid for targets. He is worth stashing as a WR5 to monitor with flex upside.

3

HUNTER HENRY (TE) - NE (14)

Over the last two weeks with a rookie quarterback, Henry has been a solid receiving threat, surpassing 40 receiving yards with at least five targets. While the TE position has been a wasteland, if you have deep benches, Henry might end up being a top-12 TE during the second half of the season with the revitalized NE offense. I wouldn't use a top waiver priority or anything more than 5% of my FAAB, but if I need to stream the TE position, he's one of the best options available.

4

RICKY PEARSALL (WR) - SF (9)

With Brandon Aiyuk out for the year and Deebo battling injuries, Pearsall will have a huge opportunity to become one of the top receiving threats on an excellent but injured SF offense. He wasn't able to show much last week in his debut and was dealing with an injury earlier in the season, making me think we will start to see some consistency after their bye week in Week 9. I don't anticipate Pearsall becoming a top 24 WR, but he could be a solid flex option in PPR scoring leagues as a bye-week fill-in.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM