

WEEK 15 DEF STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR TEAMS ON LESS THAN 60% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

CHICAGO BEARS @ CLE

Surprisingly, they have significantly improved over the past four games. During that span, they have generated 11 sacks and forced 11 turnovers and are currently in the top 12 in the league in turnovers. They face a CLE offense that hasn't looked too bad over their previous games. Despite that, I'm optimistic that this defense will disrupt the offense and force a turnover-prone (worse in the league) offense to continue to make mistakes. I would consider them one of the higher-upside streaming options available.

ATLANTA FALCONS @ CAR

I don't consider their defense good, but they get to face the awful CAR offense, who are bottom five in yards and points per game. With the excellent matchup, this defense has the potential to continue to force multiple turnovers and hold their opponent to less than 17 points, as they have in two of their last three games. I'm not confident that they are a top-12 defense since they can underperform any week, but considering that they are likely available makes them a last-resort streaming option.

INDIANAPOLIS COLTS VS PIT

While they didn't look that impressive last week, this defense has scored double-digit points in four games prior and has a decent matchup against a struggling PIT offense that hasn't surpassed 20 points in four straight games. They have five consecutive games with a turnover and are in the top ten in the league. Despite being in the bottom five defense of points per game, they are facing a bottom ten offense in scoring, so the floor as a top-12 defense seems higher than some other options.

LAS VEGAS RAIDERS VS LAC

After a strong performance last week, they have held their opponents to 20 points or less in four of their previous five games. They also generated multiple sacks in three games and forced multiple turnovers in two. They now face a struggling LAC offense that lost their star QB due to injury. This offense hasn't scored 14 points in three straight games, so with that downgrade, I would consider this one of the best matchups available. They are also available in most leagues as a high-upside streaming option.
