

WEEK 14 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 60% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

JARED GOFF (DET) VS MIN

Finally, after mentioning him week after week, he has shown the upside that's been missing in previous games. Facing a MIN offense that will score points, I'm optimistic that DET won't be able to run the ball the entire game, hopefully giving Jared Goff a chance to throw a couple of touchdowns. MIN is a bottom-five defense in yards per attempt; however, they are league-average in passing touchdowns and top-five in turnovers. He's a risky streaming option in single QB leagues.

KENNY PICKETT (PIT) VS BAL

It was between him or Mac Jones @ ARI, and neither player has been fantasy relevant. Pickett has failed to reach 200 passing yards in three of the last four games but is a rushing threat (at least five rush attempts in 3/4 games). This is nothing more than a play against the injury to Lamar Jackson, which hampers the BAL offense, allowing Pickett not to get caught up in the negative game script. I'm not expecting anything more than 200 yards and one touchdown, which makes him barely worth a start in superflex leagues.

RYAN TANNEHILL (TEN) VS JAX

This feels stupid. I don't know why, but this should be a solid matchup. Facing a below-average JAX passing defense, I still don't feel great about streaming him beyond a mid-tier QB2. He's failed to throw at least two touchdowns in back-to-back games and reverted to less than 200 passing yards after surpassing at least 250 yards in three straight. JAX is also a top-ten defense in rushing yards per attempt which may help Tannehill be utilized more within the offense.

MIKE WHITE (NYJ) @ BUF

Against a tough matchup, there's no way he can continue the 300+ yard performances and throw multiple touchdowns. However, with matchups against DET and JAX afterward, he may be worth picking up a week early. Even against BUF, he's still a low-end QB2 in superflex leagues but has streaming potential in the fantasy playoffs. He's shown the ability to run the offense and move the ball. If he's able to limit his turnovers, his scoring upside improves; however he's the last resort for me.
