

WAIVER ADDS WEEK 2

09/14/2020

These five players should be targeted in most 12 team leagues and are currently rostered in less than 40% of Yahoo leagues.

BENNY SNELL - PIT (8)

With James Conner injured, he took over, finishing with 19 carries for 113 yards. While he won't repeat those numbers against DEN next week, he's shown to be an RB2/flex option in standard leagues. If Conner returns, he'll be a solid handcuff.

JOSHUA KELLEY - LAC (10)

Surpassing Justin Jackson as the second option, he impressed with 12 carries for 60 yards and a TD. HC Anthony Lynn wants to keep Ekeler involved, but Kelley should be a flex option in standard leagues with upside if the goal line touches continue.

PARRIS CAMPBELL - IND (7)

As a rookie last season, he showed flashes before his injury. Now healthy, he finished with six catches for 71 yards on nine targets. Rivers seems to have chemistry with the young receiver, making him a stash in PPR formats.

BRANDON AIYUK - SF (11)

How can he be a waiver pick up if he's injured? When the top two receiving options are currently hurt, the opportunity is available for a first-round rookie. Getting in limited practices last week, if healthy, he can surprise as a WR3 against the NYJ.

LOGAN THOMAS - WAS (8)

I'll admit, I wasn't familiar with him until I heard the camp hype. Even then, I didn't expect him to finish with four catches for 37 yards and a TD on eight targets. If he can continue being the second option, he can be a TE 1 streamer.
