

DEF STREAM WEEK 13

12/1/2020

These four DEF are streamable options and currently are rostered in less than 60% of Yahoo leagues.

CHICAGO BEARS VS DET

After a subpar performance last week, this team could be available on your waiver wire, and I would pick them up if they are. Facing DET next week, with the injuries to Golladay, Swift, among others, you could be looking at a double-digit performance if they remain out. If they return, then maybe I wouldn't be so excited to start but will likely anyway since it's a divisional matchup.

GREEN BAY PACKERS VS PHI

So that recommendation worked out, and after watching PHI, I'm still comfortable streaming this team again this week. Wentz has not looked good, and the turnover upside alone makes this a streaming option. Sure, this could be a trap game since Miles Sanders could take over, but if you are not starting a BAL/PIT type of DEF, then I'm fine taking that change.

MINNESOTA VIKINGS VS JAX

I'll be honest; the JAX offense did surprise me with how well they played with Mike Glennon. So if he starts again, this is considered an "I don't want a zero" recommendation because MIN is not CLE, and they will have an additional week's worth of film to prepare as well. If you miss out on one of the other options, this could be a sneaky consolation prize.

LOS ANGELES CHARGERS VS NE

Facing NE, this is not a "swing for the fences" type of play. With the injury to Isiah Wynn (T), the NE offensive line has looked worse, and I could see Bosa opening up opportunities for other players if he's not getting the sacks himself. Chris Harris Jr. (CB) returns, which helps bolster the secondary that is missing Casey Hayward.

