

WEEK 10 DEF STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR TEAMS ON LESS THAN 60% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

CHICAGO BEARS VS NE

Coming off a solid performance last week, they have continued to generate multiple sacks and held their opponents to 20 points or less in five of their last seven games, making them a top-ten defense during the season. Now, they face an NE offense in the bottom five in total offensive yards and points scored, making them a good matchup even with the rookie quarterback reviving the passing offense, as they have scored at least 20 points in two of their last four games

NEW YORK GIANTS @ CAR

Despite last week's rough performance, I'm not convinced that this defense is still a top-12 defense against good matchups. It doesn't get much better than an awful CAR offense that surpassed 20 points for the first time in their last five games. They have generated at least four sacks in six of their last seven games and held their opponents to 20 points or less in two of their last five games. Due to the lack of turnovers, this defense lacks the upside you'd want in a streaming option, but the floor should be enough to start them.

DETROIT LIONS @ HOU

Despite the offense getting all the attention, this defense has strung together some strong performances. They have generated at least a sack and forced multiple turnovers while holding their opponents to under 17 points in two of their last four games. They are currently a top-ten defense, and they face an HOU offense that is missing its top two receiving threats. They also failed to reach 14 points last week for only the second time, making this a decent but not great streaming option.

INDIANAPOLIS COLTS VS BUF

Finding the last streaming option was tough; it was either this or ATL @ NO, and I decided to go with the better defense coming off a strong performance last week against one of the better offenses (MIN) in the league. Over the last three games, they have generated multiple sacks and forced multiple turnovers in two of them. The offense should be more consistent with Joe Flacco as the starting quarterback. I like this defense as a last-resort streaming option.
