

WEEK 11 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 70% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

MATTHEW STAFFORD (LAR) @ NE

Despite the rough performance last week, I'm still confident that this offense will bounce back against an okay NE defense coming off their best game of the season. Despite the score, Stafford was able to move the ball consistently, and I don't think the red zone struggles will continue. He's thrown over 275 yards in three straight games and six touchdowns over two games before last week. Because of this, he remains one of the better high-floor streaming options available.

RUSSELL WILSON (PIT) VS BAL

After three weeks of solid performances, I'm finally ready to believe that he is a streaming option just like Justin Fields. The difference is the upside. Wilson isn't a rushing threat, but he has big-play ability and will likely throw multiple touchdowns in the majority of games. We haven't had enough of a sample size to determine what his floor is, but against a vulnerable BAL defense, I think he will be a top-18 option with a top-12 upside if he can connect on those deep shots.

JUSTIN HERBERT (LAC) VS CIN

After a disappointing performance last week, he was still a top-12 quarterback, thanks to the rushing touchdown. Last week was the first time since the Week 5 bye that he failed to surpass 200 passing yards. Besides that, he's been relatively solid as a top-15 streaming option, throwing multiple touchdowns in two of his last three games, and is facing a beatable CIN defense. However, his upside is limited, which is preventing him from being a weekly starting option and only a high-floor streaming option.

BO NIX (DEN) VS ATL

After a solid performance against a good KC defense last week, I think it's time to consider Nix as one of the better streaming options. He has surpassed 200 passing yards in five of his last six games and thrown multiple touchdowns in four. He's also been a rushing threat with over 60 rushing yards or a touchdown in four of those six games. This week, he faces a solid but not great ATL defense and LV afterward, which is a better matchup. He's one of the better streaming options available.
