

WEEK 4 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 70% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

CALEB WILLIAMS (CHI) VS LAR

This one is a bit tough, considering he's rostered in over 60% of leagues, but this is a great spot-start opportunity for Williams. Sure, he had a promising game last week, but I think this is a good matchup against a LAR defense that gave up over 250 passing yards and six touchdowns in their previous two games. He showed some flashes last week, and I'm optimistic that a top-15 performance from him will give you enough of a floor to win your week.

2

JUSTIN FIELDS (PIT) @ IND

It's a bit wild to mention him, but a rushing quarterback going against a below-average rush defense is the simplest answer. While his numbers haven't been impressive, he's been limiting his turnovers and managing the offense well enough to win. He has shown some chemistry with big-play threat George Pickens and seems to be getting more comfortable each game. He's an easy spot start in superflex leagues, and I will have him on my bench in deeper leagues.

3

SAM DARNOLD (MIN) @ GB

It's not a great matchup, but he's been hot this season despite the injuries to T.J. Hockenson and Jordan Addison. While I'm not ready to say he's an every-week starter, he's shown he can be a spot start against most matchups. He looks comfortable in that offense with other high-profile names underperforming or injured; he has risen to that top 12 conversation. He should be rostered in all leagues that generally roster two quarterbacks and potentially a weekly streaming option.

4

ANDY DALTON (CAR) VS CIN

I don't feel great about potentially overreacting to one great game, but that CAR offense looked completely different under Dalton. Of course, that game was likely the ceiling in the range of outcomes. Still, against a CIN defense that just gave up 38 points to a rookie quarterback, I consider this a sneaky streaming option (top 10 upside) in superflex leagues and a last-resort option in single QB leagues. He may also be a weekly streaming option if he can do 2/3 of last week's performance.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM