

WEEK 6 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 70% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

SAM DARNOLD (SEA) @ JAX

Coming off his best performance of the season, we got to see his "ceiling," which ended up with over 300 passing yards and four touchdowns. Facing a JAX defense that leads the league in takeaways and a top-ten defense in points allowed, I'd temper my expectations and wouldn't expect more than what we've seen in previous games. Surpassing 200 yards and throwing two touchdowns isn't amazing, but it's still solid enough to get by. It's not my top option, but a top-15 streaming option nonetheless.

TUA TAGOVAILOA (MIA) VS LAC

Coming off his first three-touchdown performance, he has put together solid performances, throwing multiple touchdowns in four straight games. The issue is that he has thrown fewer than 200 yards in two of those games. They are facing an LAC defense that's a top-ten defense in both passing yards allowed and points allowed. However, this defense has allowed at least 20 points in three straight games, and the injuries to the offense have me considering him as a boom-or-bust top-15 streaming option.

MATTHEW STAFFORD (LAR) @ BAL

Coming off back-to-back games where he threw over 350 yards and three touchdowns against a decent IND and SF defense, he is facing an injured BAL defense that is a bottom-five defense in points allowed and passing yards allowed per game. He is the top streaming option available and may be worth rostering every week. As long as Puka Nacua and Davante Adams are healthy and not facing a top-five defense, he will be on this list until more people are aware that a top-12 QB is available on the waiver wire.

BRYCE YOUNG (CAR) VS DAL

Despite surpassing 200 passing yards only once so far, he has a great matchup against a beatable DAL defense in the bottom five of passing yards allowed and points allowed per game. There's not much evidence to show that Young is a top-12 option, besides his Week 2 performance (300+ yards & 3 TDs), but if there were ever an opportunity, this would be it. I wouldn't be starting him over most streaming options listed here, but he's certainly worth taking a shot on as a risky top-15 option.
