

WEEK 8 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 70% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

JOE FLACCO (CIN) VS NYJ

Since joining CIN, Flacco has looked better than expected in his first two games, throwing multiple touchdowns and over 200 yards. Last week, we got to see his best game of the season, throwing over 340 yards and three touchdowns. Facing a beatable NYJ defense that's in the bottom ten in points allowed and rushing yards per game, it's a decent matchup. I would be concerned that the CIN offense will lean on the running game, but if he can throw a couple of touchdowns, he's a last resort streaming option.

2

AARON RODGERS (PIT) VS GB

Coming off one of his best performances of the season, he flashed the upside despite the low passing volume, throwing four touchdowns in two games this season, but failing to surpass 250 yards in every game so far. Because of this, he's streamable in most matchups, but barely a top-15 option even if he throws multiple touchdowns. Facing a GB defense that's league average, they have given up more than 21 points in two of their last three games, making him a top-12 option but a last-resort one in single QB leagues.

3

JAXON DART (NYG) @ PHI

After looking impressive against two good defenses (PHI & DEN), I'm finally a believer in Dart due to his rushing ability. It's important to note that he has scored a rushing touchdown in back-to-back games, which I can't expect every game from now on. His passing numbers are volatile, but he's thrown a touchdown in every game he's played. He screams "regression candidate" especially against a good PHI defense on the road, but with all the bye weeks, he's a boom-or-bust option in single QB leagues.

4

MICHAEL PENIX (ATL) VS MIA

Despite failing to finish in the top 15, he has thrown over 225 yards and a touchdown in three straight games. If it wasn't for his turnover, he may have made it, depending on your scoring settings. Inconsistent, but the ATL offense is facing a MIA defense that's in the bottom ten of yards allowed and points allowed per game, which makes it one of the best matchups with many teams on their bye week. My concern is Penix's injury, and if he is a game-time decision, I may pivot to another streaming option.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAIMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM