

WEEK 2 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 65% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

CARSON WENTZ (WAS) @ DET

Facing JAX last week, he showed off his big play ability with the Terry McLaurin TD that separates him from many game managers. He did have some turnovers, but that's expected at this point in his career. He is a volatile streaming option that can get you 28-30 points, but less than 15 is also possible. Facing a DET defense that's better than last year but not worth avoiding this is an upside option.

JAMEIS WINSTON (NO) VS. TB

While the matchup isn't good, and he had a mixed performance last week against a beatable ATL defense, I'm still optimistic that the 2nd half performance is what we'll see during the season. With Kamara, Thomas, Landry, Hill, and Olave, that's a decent group of weapons that flashed how effective they were when they were in rhythm. I wouldn't stream Winston unless in a superflex league, but there is some upside.

DANIEL JONES (NYG) VS CAR

Saquon Barkley is healthy, and that's good for Jones because he was the leading target on the team with a 33% share last week. Facing a solid CAR defense isn't going to be easy, but I think the designated runs will help him have a floor considering the passing volume was so low last week (21 attempts). He is my least confident streaming option out of the four, but it is worth considering if you're desperate.

4

TREVOR LAWRENCE (JAX) VS IND

He wasn't incredibly impressive in this game, but I think it's fair to mention his stat line was a victim of some bad drops, for inevitable touchdowns would change the general perception. Christian Kirk, Zay Jones, and Evan Engram all contributed, and the offense looked much better than last season. Facing an IND defense that gave up 20 points to HOU, it's a decent matchup for a top 12/15 QB performance.
