

WEEK 14 DEF STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR TEAMS ON LESS THAN 60% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

TENNESSEE TITANS VS JAX

After two tough matchups, some may forget that this is a top-ten defense against the run, and redzone attempts allowed. They are beatable in the air, and there's a risk that they could have some trouble. However, TEN is above league average in sacks and has held their opponents to less than 21 points in every game since their bye week, minus last week (6/7 games). Facing a JAX offense that seems to have its starting QB dealing with an injury gives me enough upside to consider streaming them as a top-15 option.

PITTSBURGH STEELERS VS BAL

With Lamar Jackson expected to miss the game and PIT being a top-ten defense against the run, this feels almost like a no-brainer. This defense has forced a sack and a turnover in every game this season and will likely extend that streak against a limited offense. I should note that this doesn't mean there's a ton of upside since I expect a low-scoring matchup; however, there's also a floor that other matchups lack. A low-end top-12 option with one of the higher floors.

CINCINNATI BENGALS VS CLE

I'm not confident with this one since CIN is league-average against the run, and this defense hasn't been impressive. They are a bottom-ten team in sacks and are generally league-average. Deshaun Watson isn't going to play worse. However, I don't think he will take a big step, either. He had a great matchup last week and looked awful. Now against a competent defense and an offense that will score more than 14 points, they could be game-scripted out of running the ball, opening up a surprise top-15 option.

LAS VEGAS RAIDERS @ LAR

Don't get me wrong, this LAR offense showed some life last week, and this ain't a great defense either by any means. However, they have been playing better recently, generating at least three sacks in three straight games while forcing turnovers in the last two. This is a better run defense as they are a bottom-ten passing defense, so I don't expect John Wolford or Bryce Perkins to be able to exploit that, making this defense a boom-or-bust top-12 option.
