

WEEK 4 WAIVERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 45% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

CHUBA HUBBARD - RB (CAR) - WK 13 BYE

With CMC injured, Hubbard stepped in to finish the game and showed some promise. If he is the clear lead back within the offense, he's looking like a solid flex option with RB2 upside. He's not a long-term play once CMC returns in a few weeks, but Hubbard is an instant spot start considering he finished with over 75 yards on 14 touches and was targeted (5) in the passing game.

HUNTER RENFROW - WR (LV) - WK 8 BYE

He was listed here last week, and he finished with another solid game of 77 yards on five catches and a touchdown. He is the underrated flex option in PPR leagues that can be a high floor spot start for most teams. With defenses focused on stopping Darren Waller, Renfrow has quietly become an essential piece within the offense, even with Henry Ruggs playing well.

TIM PATRICK - WR (DEN) - WK 11 BYE

With Jeudy out and now KJ Hamler injured, Patrick finds himself in a similar role as last season and has shown some consistency as a secondary option within the offense. Even with Sutton and Fant as primary options, Patrick is a deep threat with the ability to catch contested balls in the redzone. However, he doesn't have the volume in PPR leagues, so the upside is limited. Definitely a bench stash to follow.

PEYTON BARBER - RB (WAS) - WK 8 BYE

I was going to have Jalen Reagor again on this list, but I decided not to be lazy and find another player with the opportunity to be a spot start. With Jacobs injured, Barber has become the lead rusher and goal-line option within the offense. He's a short-term TD dependant flex which in standard leagues isn't too bad considering he gets double-digit touches.

WEEK 4 QB STREAMERS

1

TAYLOR HEINICKE - QB (WAS) - @ ATL

Despite a rough performance, he finished with three touchdowns last week and five in two games. He is not considered a rushing threat but is mobile enough to escape pressure and scramble when needed. Facing an improved but still beatable ATL defense, this could be a bounce-back game where he finishes with a serviceable 250 yards and a couple of touchdowns.

SAM DARNOLD - QB (CAR) - @ DAL

I mentioned him last week as a streaming option, and finishing with over 300 yards and a couple of rushing TDs, he was able to be productive. This week against an improved DAL defense, I'm not expecting him to have an outstanding performance, but he could finish with a solid game just because the DAL offense will force a CMC less CAR to keep scoring if they want to win.

JIMMY GAROPPOLO - QB (SF) - VS SEA

Similar to my idea with Darnold above, this SEA offense is going to score some points. With all the injuries to the running backs, the team needs Garoppolo to play well if they want to win. Considering the circumstances and I can see a path where this becomes one of his better games of the season and could finish within the top 15. Rostering him is more of a last resort in superflex leagues.

JAMEIS WINSTON - QB (NO) - VS NYG

It wouldn't be right to describe a Jameis Winston led offense without including the word inconsistent. After a couple of rough performances, it's clear that he has limitations, and it will come down to if he can execute the game plan. However, facing an NYG defense that lost its leading tackler to injury, I'm open to the idea of starting him as a spot start in superflex leagues.

WEEK 4 DEF STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR TEAMS ON LESS THAN 50% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

NEW ORLEANS SAINTS VS NYG

Dealing with injuries on the defense, they played well last week as they get healthier and now face an inconsistent NYG offense that can be turnover-prone at times. Assuming the defense gets another week healthier, this is a high-upside play as I can see this defense with a pick-six or sacking Daniel Jones five times. However, there's also a floor as I don't see a way this defense gives up 30 points in any scenario.

INDIANAPOLIS COLTS @ MIA

While this defense hasn't been impressive over the past three games, they have been solid against good offenses (SEA, LAR) scoring a handful of points and doing well last week. Facing an MIA offense without their starting QB gives me the confidence to expect another solid performance with some upside. They have been creating turnovers in each game and I'll be targeting them if I need a defense.

CHICAGO BEARS VS DET

Don't let the numbers fool you. This is still a good defense that will have more good games than not. The problem on that team is the offense and facing a DET offense that doesn't scare me, I'll consider streaming them as they continue to figure things out. There's definitely some risk here facing a divisional rival, but it's hard for me to imagine that they won't be pressuring Jared Goff and creating turnovers.

TENNESSEE TITANS @ NYJ

Every season, there is usually a team or two that you can stream any capable defense against since the offense is performing so poorly. The early candidate is the NYJ, and facing an inconsistent TEN defense, this has the potential to finish in double digits because of the turnover-prone rookie QB and first-year head coach. If I'm looking for a home-run swing, this defense is one of my higher targets.
