

WEEK 10 THURSDAY NIGHT - ATL @ CAR

FOLLOW ON TWITTER/INSTAGRAM:
@AKAMAIFANTASY

FINAL SCORE: ATL 15 - CAR 25

Tyler Allgeier led the team in rushing attempts with four other players, and nobody surpassed 50 rushing yards or scored a touchdown despite averaging 5.5 yards per attempt as a team.

Kyle Pitts led the team in targets (27% target share) but failed to surpass two catches or 30 yards in back-to-back games. He has reached 30 receiving yards in only two games this season.

Marcus Mariota finished with the most passing attempts since Week 1 and still failed to reach 200 passing yards. He also finished with his lowest rush attempts (3) of the season.

Drake London led the WRs in targets but finished with less receiving yards (38) than Damiere Byrd (58) and barely beat out Khadarel Hodge (37). London has failed to surpass 50 receiving yards since Week 3.

Cordarrelle Patterson finished with the lowest rushing attempts this season, tied with Caleb Huntley (5) (2nd time with single-digit carries), and has less than two targets in the past five games.

1

D'onta Foreman was impressive, accounting for 38% of the offense's total yards and averaging 4.2 yards per carry. He has surpassed 100 rushing yards in three of the past four games.

2

D.J. Moore led the team in targets (37% target share) but failed to surpass 30 receiving yards in consecutive games. Terrance Marshall led with 43 yards but got it on one big play.

3

P.J. Walker was awful, throwing for 108 yards on 16 attempts (averaging 6.8 yards per pass). It was his worse performance as a starter, and he got nearly 40% of his passing yards on one play.

4

CAR's offense was extremely run-heavy (73% of the plays were running plays) and surpassed 225 rushing yards as a team with five players with a rushing attempt.

5

Chuba Hubbard (14 yards) finished with fewer rushing attempts than Raheem Blackshear (32 yards) and finished with less than 50 rushing yards.