

WAIVER ADDS WEEK 15

12/15/2020

These four players should be targeted in most 12 team leagues and are currently rostered in less than 40% of Yahoo leagues.

NELSON AGHOLOR - LV

He has emerged as the second receiving option on the team and has been a boom or bust option that has developed some consistency over the past few games. Averaging eight targets over the past month, he shows a floor that can make him streamable in the right matchup. Granted, I wouldn't be thrilled to play him in the playoffs against LAC, but the upside is there.

MARQUEZ VALDES-SCANTLING - GB

This one here is if you're not in the playoffs and are looking to get that consolation prize. A true boom or bust player and has played well over the past three games. He'll get his opportunities within the offense, and it will just come down to if he can take advantage. Facing CAR, I'm optimistic about the matchup since Davante Adams will attract most of the attention.

TIM PATRICK - DEN

If you read last week's article, use the same argument and another game where he has finished with more than 50 yards or a TD over the past five (excluding the Hinton game) games. He is a redzone threat and will likely continue this streak as they face a BUF defense that has recently played better but is not perfect. He's a WR3/flex option in leagues if you're dealing with injuries.

DEANDRE WASHINGTON - MIA

Honestly, there are no good RB options available under this threshold this week. But if you're desperate for double-digit carries, then here you go. With all the injuries to their running backs, he is in line to start against a decent NE defense. Hopefully, he gets a touchdown, and you can get your 10-12 points.

