

WAIVER ADDS WEEK 5

10/06/2020

These five players should be targeted in most 12 team leagues and are currently rostered in less than 40% of Yahoo leagues.

D'ERNEST JOHNSON - CLE (9)

He played well last week, rushing for 95 yards on 13 carries. With Hunt dealing with an injury that limited him in practice last week, there's a clear path for Johnson to receive double-digit touches. The schedule does get tougher for Cleveland as they face IND & PIT, so I would prefer not to start him, but you may not have a choice.

CHASE EDMONDS - AZ (8)

Going against the Jets, we would assume that the Cardinals will be ahead by a comfortable margin. Because of this, it wouldn't surprise me to see Edmonds receive double-digit touches. With Kenyan Drake looking ineffective, we could see a more balanced split for this week.

JUSTIN JACKSON - LAC (10)

Austin Ekeler is out for multiple weeks, which opens the door for him. Now, this isn't someone I'd be targeting if I need an immediate start as he's recovering from an injury earlier in the year. But with matchups against NYJ, @ MIA, and JAX after this week, he could be a streaming option for those bye weeks.

TEE HIGGINS - CIN (9)

If you follow my twitter, you'd think that I'm a big A.J. Green fan. Well, the writing is on the wall. With John Ross a healthy scratch again last week and Higgins consistently getting targets, we're watching the passing of the symbolic torch to the rookie. It won't soon be long before he's a WR3.

SCOTTY MILLER - TB (13)

Despite dealing with injuries throughout the week, Miller still came through with his best performance of the year. With the game on Thursday night, I don't expect Godwin to return. If Miller didn't aggravate his injury last week, he'd be a decent streaming option even against the Chicago defense.
