

WEEK 5 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 70% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

BAKER MAYFIELD (TB) @ ATL

Coming off a strong performance, he gets another favorable matchup against a solid but not dangerous ATL defense that has given up at least 21 points and forced two total sacks in three consecutive games. He's also flashed as a rushing threat, scoring two touchdowns over his past three games. It's not a significant factor but a nice little boost. He's been inconsistent, so I wouldn't expect his performance last week, but he has all the tools to be a top-15 quarterback with some upside.

2

JUSTIN FIELDS (PIT) VS DAL

I'm not being too high on him after his breakout performance, but he has an okay matchup with a decent DAL defense that can struggle against the run. He has also thrown a touchdown in three consecutive games and shows a connection with George Pickens. I don't expect Fields to perform close to anything last week as a passer, but I anticipate him to remain a redzone threat as a rusher, which is why I'm optimistic about him being a high-risk, high-reward top-15 streaming option in single QB leagues.

DESHAUN WATSON (CLE) @ WAS

He's been a disappointment in every game so far and has failed to surpass 200 passing yards in any game. Then why do I have him here? Well, it's because of the matchup against the below-average WAS defense that actually looked decent last week. I wasn't high on Watson coming into the season, but he has been strangely consistent, throwing a touchdown in three games and having at least 20 rushing yards each game. He's a last-resort streaming option in single QB leagues.

GENO SMITH (SEA) VS NYG

While I'm not too confident about the okay matchup against NYG, it was between Smith and Sam Darnold, who's against a good NYJ defense. Since Darnold is rostered in more leagues, I'll go with Smith, who has been solid over the past three games with at least one touchdown and surpassing 300 yards twice in that span. Honestly, he hasn't been spectacular, but if you're looking for 16-21 points, then he's a decent high-floor option if you miss out on some of the above names.
