

WEEK 2 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 70% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

BAKER MAYFIELD (TB) @ DET

Coming off a strong performance with nearly 300 passing yards and four touchdowns, he will be facing a better DET defense, but I'm still confident in Mayfield's ability to be a solid top-12 option with top-8 upside. The projected over/under is around 50/51, which gives me confidence that this will be a high-scoring game. While I wouldn't be excited to stream him in single QB leagues, he's a decent option that I like much more than the names below, and he's my only option in superflex leagues.

AARON RODGERS (NYJ) @ TEN

Coming off a strong performance with nearly 300 passing yards and four touchdowns, he will be facing a better DET defense, but I'm still confident in Mayfield's ability to be a solid top-12 option with top-8 upside. The projected over/under is around 50/51, which gives me confidence that this will be a high-scoring game. While I wouldn't be excited to stream him in single QB leagues, he's a decent option that I like much more than the names below, and he's my only option in superflex leagues.

GENO SMITH (SEA) @ NE

It was between the following names: Justin Fields on the road vs DEN, Malik Willis with his first start against IND, or Deshaun Watson against JAX on the road. Perhaps Watson could be a streaming option, but I don't believe he has the upside that Geno does against NE. Geno has a better matchup and while his upside isn't tremendous, the floor seems to be the best out of the four options. He's better than Daniel Jones but is considered a last-resort option in superflex leagues.

DANIEL JONES (NYG) @ WAS

This feels wrong. I don't know how much more I need to say. Jones looked awful last week, and I have no confidence in him. But this is a lousy WAS defense, and divisional rivalries can be unpredictable. Add that Jones is a rushing threat (loosely) and that the over/under is around 42/44, which makes me consider Jones a last-resort streaming option in superflex leagues only. If you're starting him in a single QB league, you have bigger problems beyond me.
