

WAIVER ADDS WEEK 3

09/22/2020

These five players should be targeted in most 12 team leagues and are currently rostered in less than 40% of Yahoo leagues.

JERRICK MCKINNON - SF (11)

With Raheem Mostert and Tevin Coleman's injuries, there's a good chance that McKinnon will be the starter if both are out. Despite only nine touches the past two weeks, he's scored in each game and shown big play ability that can give you a solid flex play against NYG.

MIKE DAVIS - CAR (7)

This recommendation is for leagues with any PPR scoring involved. If the Panthers don't sign anyone in free agency with CMC out, Davis will likely get the start. With eight receptions last week for 74 yards, he will take over the receiving work, which will make him fantasy relevant.

RUSSELL GAGE - ATL (10)

With 21 targets in two weeks, he has silently become a WR4 with two solid performances. While the game script was in his favor, the team's porous defense will likely force Matt Ryan to throw the ball to keep up with the score.

N'KEAL HARRY - NE (6)

With 18 targets over the past two weeks, the second-year player has carved himself a role within the offense. While he's not making explosive plays, his receiving volume makes him the #2 option and possibly the #1 in the future. He's a good pick-up in PPR leagues.

LOGAN THOMAS - WAS (8)

He's still under 40% ownership and needs to be picked up in all leagues. With another nine targets last week, he has continued to be the second passing option on the team and will only get better as his connection with Haskins improve.
