

WEEK 9 DEF STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR TEAMS ON LESS THAN 55% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

NEW ORLEANS SAINTS VS ATL

Coming off an impressive performance against TB last week, they are the top streaming option I'll target in every league. Facing an improving but still inconsistent ATL offense without their top WR is a good matchup at home. Generating more than one sack and one turnover in four games this season, I'm hoping that we see another double-digit game against a divisional rival.

2

LAS VEGAS RAIDERS @ NYG

Facing an injured NYG offense, this is a decent matchup for the LV defense coming off back-to-back games with more than one sack and one turnover before their bye week. There's undoubtedly some risk as they don't have the upside of double-digit games. However, I believe there's a good chance for a handful of points as I don't expect this to be a high-scoring game.

MIAMI DOLPHINS VS HOU

This recommendation heavily relies on the assumption that QB Tyrod Taylor will not return from injury. If Taylor returns, then my confidence in the floor of this defense has evaporated. They looked rough in recent weeks, and honestly, this is the last resort option for those who couldn't get one of the other defenses listed here. However, if Tyrod is out, I'm confident they can score a few points.

NEW ENGLAND PATRIOTS @ CAR

I'm cheating as they're rostered in 56% of Yahoo leagues, but I think it's close enough to make an exception due to the great matchup. Coming off an impressive win against LAC, they have been getting more than one sack and one interception in consecutive games. Facing a struggling CAR offense, I'm also targeting this defense as a safe option with some upside.
