

WEEK 10 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 70% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

J.J. MCCARTHY (MIN) VS BAL

While this is not a great matchup with Lamar Jackson returning, this defense is not good enough to avoid streaming a QB that has thrown multiple touchdowns and scored a rushing touchdown in two of his three games. Remember, this BAL defense is in the bottom ten in passing yards allowed and points allowed per game. I can see a scenario where McCarthy will throw a touchdown in garbage time if they can't keep it close. Certainly risky, but it definitely has upside as a boom-or-bust streaming option.

JACOBY BRISSETT/KYLER MURRAY (AZ) @ SEA

It was between them or Tua Tagovailoa against BUF, and I decided to target the QB that's been playing well (Brissett), throwing over 250 yards and two touchdowns in three straight competitions. The SEA matchup is challenging, as they are a top-five defense in rushing yards allowed and points allowed per game, but are league-average against the pass. If the AZ offense is going to move the ball, it will have to be through the air, making either guy a streaming option, but Brissett the preferred one.

JAXON DART (NYG) @ CHI

This might be the last time I can have him here, so here's a quick reminder to pick him up. Scoring a rushing touchdown in four straight games has boosted his mediocre passing volume, as he has failed to throw at least 200 yards in three of his last four games. Despite that, he has thrown multiple touchdowns in two of his previous three games, and it seems unsustainable. Facing a CHI defense that's in the bottom ten in total yards allowed and points allowed per game makes Dart a top-15 option.

SAM DARNOLD (SEA) VS AZ

Coming off one of his best games of the season, he has been explosive recently, throwing over 300 yards and four touchdowns in two of his last four games. He has also thrown a touchdown and over 200 yards in all but one game this season, with multiple touchdowns in five games. Facing an AZ defense that looked solid last week but is in the bottom half of passing yards allowed per game, I'm looking at Darnold as a high-floor option and not anticipating a top-ten performance, but enough to win you your week.
