

WEEK 5 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 85% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

JACOBY BRISSETT (ARI) VS DET

While he hasn't been as consistent as last year, he's thrown two touchdowns in back-to-back games and averaged over 200 yards per game. What makes him a popular option is the matchup against a bottom-three defense in total yards and points allowed. If ARI wants to win, they will need to score points. With a projected over/under of 54 points, it's anticipated to be a high-scoring game, which gives Brissett top-ten upside. I would consider him one of the safer streaming options available.

2

SAM DARNOLD (SEA) VS SF

Failing to be a top-15 QB last week, he was in the top-18, throwing two touchdowns on 22 attempts, the third-lowest total compared to last season. I don't expect SEA to give the ball to Emmanuel Wilson 20+ attempts again. Facing a good SF defense that has held opponents to 14 points or less in three games, this feels counterintuitive. But the SF offense has scored more than 24 points in every game, and with a projected over/under of 46.5, Darnold will be a higher-floor, top-15 streaming option again.

3

AARON RODGERS (PIT) VS IND

I don't know what's more flawed: considering Aaron Rodgers a "safe" streaming option or making Cam Ward one of my streaming options because of the matchup. Rodgers has looked good, throwing for over 275 yards and three touchdowns in back-to-back games against solid defenses, and now he faces a bottom-five IND defense in passing yards allowed, while giving up 30+ points twice this season. Even if Rico Dowdle returns, I see Rodgers as a higher-floor top-15 streaming option as a last resort.

4

JAMEIS WINSTON (NYG) @ WAS

Last week was the first game where he showed some streaming potential (throwing over 200 yards and a touchdown), and if Jayden Daniels is playing, I would prefer streaming him over Winston. However, this WAS defense ranks in the bottom ten in passing yards and points allowed this season, giving up 10 passing touchdowns in their first three games. Even if Daniels returns, I would consider Winston a boom-or-bust, last-resort streaming option with top-10 upside.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAIMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM